Publication record

Overall, as of August 2008, I have published 24 first-author papers in refereed journals (out of a total of 37, including non-first author papers), which have collected a cumulative number of citations of 752 (1004 in total), with a H-factor of 17. I was also co-editor of the book “Growing Black Holes: Accretion in a Cosmological Context” published by Springer Verlag in the ESO Astrophysics Symposia series. See list of publications for details.

Collaborations:

I have published scientific papers, and have active collaborations with scientists at MPA and MPE (Garching), IoA (Cambridge, UK), Univ. of Wisconsin (Madison, USA), Amsterdam Univ. (The Netherlands), Southampton Univ. and Leicester Univ. (UK), INAF (Bologna and Rome observatories, Italy), SISSA (Trieste, Italy) and CESR (Toulouse, France). Recently, I became member of the COSMOS collaboration, and of the LOFAR Surveys KSP team.

Teaching Experience, Invited Seminars and Review Talks

Scientific communication is a fundamental part of my young scientific career. Apart from the regular in-house meetings and discussion sessions, aimed in particular at the younger student population of my host institutes, I have attended about 40 international conferences, presenting oral contributions in about two thirds of them. In recent years I have been also regularly invited by various international scientific institutes to give colloquia and review talks, which I list below:

- 2008: Invited review at the conference “The inner Kiloparsec: Active Galactic Nuclei and their hosts”, Crete, Greece
- 2008: Colloquium, INAF-Observatory of Rome, Italy
- 2008: Invited review at the meeting “Astronomy in the next decade: synergies with the square kilometer array”, Bonn, Germany

Professional Services

As a professional scientist, I dedicate an increasing amount of time to various services for the community, which I consider important, scientifically interesting and highly formative. As listed below, they reflect my broad range of scientific interests, covering almost the entire electromagnetic spectrum, from the radio to the X-ray domains. Also as a conference organizer, I have already accumulated experience both on the practical and scientific level.
